Novice and experienced computer users will be warmly welcomed

This year, Father's Day will be celebrated on Sunday 1st September. We hope all you fathers and grandfathers have a wonderful, relaxing day.

History of Father's Day: Historians have recorded that there was a tradition to celebrate Father's Day even thousands of years ago. Their studies say that 4,000 years ago in Babylon, a son called Elmesu carved a father's day message on a clay card. In his message, Elmesu wished his father a long and healthy life. There is no knowledge as to what happened to this father/son duo, but it is believed that several countries retained the custom of celebrating Father's Day.

The celebration of Father's Day, as seen today, originated in the last century. Ms Sonora Louise Smart Dodd is recognised as the father (or mother) of the Father's Day Festival. It is celebrated in several countries on the first Sunday in June, but in Australia, it is the first Sunday in September.

Our last meeting — Free Security Programs and Mailwasher

Dean Vice gave an excellent presentation on computer security. A number of members took the opportunity to note points of interest as Dean moved from one point to another.

Some of the tips covered during the presentation were:

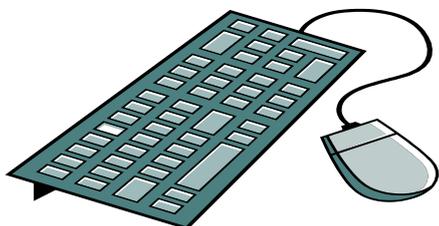

- How to ensure an attachment and a URL is not a threat by using a website called Virus total (www.virustotal.com).
- Do your own research on which antivirus program to use. Use Wikipedia and search antivirus.
- Norton safe web was mentioned as another option for checking attachments.
- Keeping your antivirus software up to date and doing a full scan of your computer at least weekly.
- Use more than one program to scan your computer, as different programs pick up different threats. (But don't have two antivirus programs running on your computer at the same time).
- No antivirus program protects your computer 100%.
- Never open an attachment if you don't know who it is from. Scan the attachment before you open in (as mentioned above).
- When installing a new program, click custom install, and untick, or be aware of any additional programs, ie task bars that may want to install themselves on your computer.
- Dean mentioned he prefers to use the Windows firewall instead of a third party firewall.
- Computer Security (Dean's Way) - Dean's notes will be featured in the Sept newsletter.

Dean also demonstrated Mailwasher. A program used widely with dialup which has features that can assist users of Broadband.

Jim highlighted the point—Ensure the time and date on your computer are correct, otherwise you may have problems with your antivirus program.

Banking on the go—security tips for your smartphone and tablet.

Online browsing can unwittingly expose you to malware or viruses which infect your computer or mobile device and make your information available to criminals. There are some good practices and some simple actions that may reduce the likelihood that information will be compromised.

- ♦ Lock: set your smartphone and tablet to automatically lock. The password will protect your device so that no-one else can use or view your information. Also store your device in a secure location.
- ♦ Contact your bank if you lose your smartphone or tablet: call your bank immediately to tell staff about the loss and provide your new mobile number, especially if your bank uses an SMS message to authenticate transactions.
- ♦ Clear your mobile device: of text messages from banks especially before sharing, discarding or selling your device.
- ♦ Be careful what you send via text: never use text messages to disclose any personal information, such as account numbers, passwords or other personal information which could be used to steal your identity.
- ♦ Use only official apps: make sure to only use apps supplied by your financial institution and only download them from official app stores.
- ♦ Protect your tablet and smartphone: install and keep up-to-date anti-virus and firewall software purchased from trusted suppliers. It is important to update the software because new viruses emerge for which software providers create new barriers to deal with the new threats.
- ♦ Protect your passwords: ensure you keep confidential your PIN and internet banking logons and passwords. Avoid using the same login passwords for multiple websites that include sensitive personal information. Make sure your password or code is something that's hard for others to guess but easy for you to remember.
- ♦ Read privacy policies: before you provide personal information to any website, understand how your information will be used and how long it will be retained.

The Stop Go Man

I weren't much of a scholar.
School didn't do much for me.
I was no good at rithmatic
Or at a spelling bee.

But I have a sense of humour
Yeah, I really like a joke,
And I do enjoy a nice cold beer
Cause I'm just an ordinary bloke.

But I thought that I was unemployable
A good job never would I get.
But to those who reckon likewise,
I say you lost the bloody bet.

Cause I found a job that suites me
Out in the sun I like it fine
And you might see me on the road
sometime,
Cause I work a Stop Go sign.

I like the sense of power it gives me
Especially when the line of cars gets long.
I just turn me back and make 'em wait
Then switch me walkman on.

Some drivers must be in a hurry
Cause the beep their bloody horn.
I just make 'em wait a little longer
And they look at me with scorn.

They always blame me for the wait
And they think I just don't care.
That just makes them madder
And some stick one finger in the air.

Well, I don't make the rules mate!
So even though you think I'm queer.
The fella up the other end
Will call me when it's clear.

Then there's all those pretty sheilas
I'd chat 'em if I had the nerve.
But I haven't got the guts mate
So I just hold them up and perve.

The semis have to change right down,
You can hear the gears as they slow.
I almost make them stop completely
And then I let them go.

You should hear some of the language.
There's only so much one can bear;
Its lucky I've got ear plugs
As I slump back in my chair.

When I'm sitting on me smoko break
The cars go past like they would bust.
I have to eat me sandwiches
All covered up with dust.

So it's back onto the road I stride
I hold my sign up high.
The drivers see me coming
And they heave a mournful sigh.

They know I have the power,
And ain't it bloody grand,
To make 'em late or early
Their fate lies there, in my hand.

You may think this job is boring
And that there's no future down the line.
But the boss told me the other day
That I can get a bigger sign.

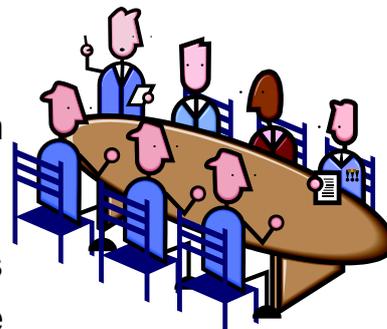

So when you see me out there,
Give me a cheery wave and say hello!
Cause if you treat me nicely
I might turn me sign to Slow!!!

Awards Night at City of Onkaparinga

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

Is the desktop on the way out?

With the recent announcement of a major reorganisation in Microsoft the 'tiles' in Windows 8 are here to stay.

As you would be aware, Microsoft followed Apple and Google with an app platform across their computers, tablets and phone.

With the fall in sales of PCs, some experts are predicting the end of the desktop.

Successful applicants for grants and recipients of awards literally packed the Council Hall in Port Noarlunga to be presented with their cheques and awards.

The Club was represented by Trevor Francis, Lionel and Anne Leddra who accepted the cheque for $1310 on behalf of the Club.

85 grants and 7 awards for excellence were awarded in the evening. The grants covered an astounding number of community related fields. Groups representing a wide variety of community clubs, all received grants to further the activities of their groups.

Text speak for Seniors

Embracing technology can be daunting for new users. The humble and trusty home telephone has been replaced by mobile phones and smart phones. And ways to communicate with loved ones have also changed immensely. Have you face-booked, tweeted (not like a bird!) or texted your loved ones? Did you get it wrong? A funny story came out of the Seniors Card offices recently; a staff member's not-so-senior mother in law texted condolences after the loss of a family member and ended the message with LOL. Of course she meant "Lots of Love" but the commonly known meaning for LOL is "Laugh out Loud"! Everyone saw the funny side of the situation, but so this doesn't happen to you, here is a list of common text abbreviations that might help you to decode the world of text speak (with some that can be used specifically by seniors!).

LOL:	Laugh Out Loud	MWAH:	Kiss
ALOL:	Actually Laugh Out Loud	TTYL:	Talk to You Later
AFC:	Away from Computer	YOLO:	You Only Live Once
AML:	All My Love	ASM:	A Senior Moment
B4N:	Bye for Now	ATD:	At the Doctors
BS:	Big Smile	WIWYA:	When I was your Age
IMHO:	In My Humble Opinion	CR:	Can't Remember
CWOT:	Complete Waste of Time	TWTD:	Those Were the Days

How to Get Rid of the Windows Update Virus

By an eHow Contributor

One apparent virus swimming around the Internet has been called the "Windows Update virus," because it looks like a message to update your Windows software, but has been identified as a trojan called dnetc.exe. Clearly, no true Microsoft program would be identified as a Trojan virus, so this should be removed from your PC immediately.

1. Use caution while browsing MySpace. This is one of the biggest targets, as MySpace users are receiving friend requests that provide links to the Windows Update virus. Be very careful with requests from people you don't know.
2. Contact your anti-virus software provider and see if it will protect you from the Windows Update virus. McAfee is one brand of anti-spyware that will prevent this virus from being installed.
3. Keep your anti-virus software updated and scan your computer regularly. If you receive a suspicious "Windows Update" message, run an antivirus scan and keep a lookout for dnetc.exe. Make sure your software can remove it if it comes up.
4. Take your computer into a service department if you are certain you have this or any other virus that your software cannot remove. Newer viruses like "Windows Update dnetc" always cause the biggest problems until anti-virus makers learn how to fight them.
